keeping hearts healthy

To keep your pet healthy, a good heart is a must. And step one in keeping their heart healthy is protecting them against heartworms.

Heartworms are a parasite that attach the right side your pets heart and the arteries that lead to their lungs. Dogs and cats of any breed, age, or zip code are susceptible to them.

There may be no signs or symptoms at all, which is why it's important to prevent any possibility of infection. And because it would be almost impossible to prevent your dog or cat from getting bitten by an infected mosquito (that's how the heartworms are transferred) giving them a heartworm prevention medicine one a month is a must. To help get you started, below you'll find a few companies that offer discounts and rebates for heartworm medication. These discounts and rebates can be printed directly from each company's website.

(Always consult your veterinarian before giving your pets any type of medication.)
